Labor commits $300,000 legal help for the South West Brisbane area

People in South West Brisbane needing access to free legal advice and assistance, will benefit from Friday's ALP commitment to provide additional funding for the South West Brisbane Community Legal Centre.

In Inala on Friday, Milton Dick, ALP Candidate for Oxley committed $300,000 to fund the South West Brisbane Community Legal Centre over the next three years.

"This service has assisted over 4,000 people over the past three years with legal advice and information, and there is a growing need for families who are struggling to make ends meet to access legal advice," said Sandra Padgett, Director, South West Brisbane Community Legal Centre.

"We cannot meet the needs of our community to access legal advice without continued and increased funding. Already we have a waiting list of over 3 weeks for an appointment and our outreach services are almost at capacity. The increased funding will help us to continue to provide professional and supportive advice to people in our community who would not otherwise have been able to access it," Ms Padgett went on to say.

James Farrell, Director of Community Legal Centres Queensland, echoed Ms Padgett's comments. "This commitment to the South West Brisbane Community Legal Centre is part of the ALP's larger commitment to providing legal help for people in Queensland," said Mr Farrell. "Demand for these services has doubled in the last year across Queensland, and our services are struggling to meet the community's need."

"There is however still tremendous uncertainty around funding for these important services, with a funding cut of 30% scheduled for next year, and commitments from Labor and the Coalition focussed on legal help for people affected by domestic and family violence," said Mr Farrell. "Community legal centres, and the communities that rely on our services, need certainty, to ensure that services will continue to be delivered."

"These vital services shouldn't be a political football – we need all of our political leaders to commit to supporting to the hundreds of thousands of Queenslanders who have a legal problem each year," said Mr Farrell. "While this is an important announcement, we call on all of our political leaders to work with us to ensure access to justice for all Queenslanders."
