Interviewees :	James Farrel, Community Legal Centres Qld

The Federal Government has been urged to reverse funding cuts for community legal centres who had been swamped by surge in domestic violence cases. Community Legal Centres Qld says almost 4,500 people got case work assistance for family violence matters last year, but James Farrell says the centres have to turn away almost half of the request they get across all legal issues. Attorney-General George Brandis says it is Labor's fault for allocating money when it was in government to expire in mid 2017.
