Community Legal Centres Queensland say there has been a 600% increase in people seeking help for domestic violence support over the past five years. James Farrell, Director, Community Legal Centres Queensland, says last year they turned away half of the people who reached out for help because they did not have the resources. A spokesman for the Attorney-General's Office says overall the Queensland Government has increased funding for legal aid, CLCs and specialised domestic violence services since 2015.
