WHAT'S HAPPENING AT THE NUNDAH NEIGHBOURHOOD CENTRE

The Nundah Community Legal Service

CENTRAL TO AUSTRALIAN society is social inclusion: the "fair go" with justice being available to all. Change this sentence to: "Legal problems rarely exist in isolation as individuals may also be affected by economic and political uncertainties, and social and cultural concerns. These issues can be compounded by day-to-day worries like paying expenses, jobs, caring for others, fractured relationships and domestic violence. It is easy for people to feel lost in the daunting legal process with complicated jargon, forms and procedures. Lawyers "know the system" but private ones are often expensive, while government legal assistance has limited resources. Despite need, many cannot access legal help.

At the Nundah Community Legal Service (NCLS), we help break the cycle of hardship and despair by providing the community with access to justice through free, quality, local, accessible, often "triage" and sometimes "last resort" legal service.

We do this through our long established weekly Wednesday drop-in advice service staffed by dedicated volunteer lawyers (many with specific expertise) and students, together with an employed senior generalist solicitor who sees clients in longer daytime appointments. Like other community legal centres, our service is not means-tested and takes a holistic collaborative approach, providing effective information, advice and practical referrals to specialist legal, non-legal and multi-disciplinary services.

The Wednesday Evening Drop-in Service is staffed by our Legal Service Administrator

(Jo Money), Volunteer Solicitors and Students and opens at 5:30pm for intake, with Solicitors seeing clients from 6:15pm. No appointment is necessary and clients are generally seen in order of arrival (subject to availability of a Solicitor with relevant experience).

The Daytime Service is by appointment from Tuesday - Friday 9.30am - 2.45pm. To book an appointment, please phone 3260 6820.

For lawyers and students wishing to volunteer their services to NCLS (including present and past volunteers), please contact Jo on 3260 6820.

All volunteers for NCLS must undertake formal induction and be eligible for a Blue Card (working with children).

We also provide community legal education to community groups and students and any requests for us to provide these may be made to Jo on 3260 6820.

The NCLS looks forward to assisting our community in Brisbane's North during 2017.
