12.15pm-1pm: Lunch

Over lunch, spend a little time networking with your fellow Summates but also in session with our Geeky Gurus.

We've nominated some topics you have told us matter to you, so if you want some help, head to the huddle where our specialists are hanging out to assist you:

- John Chisholm, Managing Director, John Chisholm Consulting; Director, Innovim; CLI Distinguished Fellow: How to price legal services and not use one billable hour
- Jan Christie, Learning & Development Manager, Gilbert + Tobin: How to establish a legal talent management strategy for the future of work
- Peter Dombkins, Head of Legal Project Management, Gilbert + Tobin: Everything you ever wanted to know about legal project management
- Sam Flynn, Co-Founder, Josef: Everything you ever wanted to know about lawyerbots
- Alison Laird, Head of Innovation and Project Delivery Asia Pacific, Pinsent Masons and Chair, Chief Innovation Officers Forum: How to establish the role and what to do with a Chief Innovation Officer
- Michael Pattison, Founder, ContractProbe and Director, Australian Legal Technology Association (ALTA): How to choose the right AI for your firm

1pm – 2.30pm: Concurrent Sessions

Mapping the Client Journey – Taking the guess work out of client expectations!

So how great are you really at customer service? And in the age of AI and “will robots take my job?” how important is it anyway? In this session, Carl White will draw on his work with CXINLaw and the multi-year surveys they have conducted to identify and explore how clients perceive your firm in the digital age.

In this session, Carl White, Chief Experience Officer and Director, CXINLaw; CLI Distinguished Fellow, will introduce a customer mapping process and tool you will be able to use in your firm/organisation to begin the journey of understanding what matters to clients so you can develop practical and impactful business development strategies.

AI and the New, New Legal Marketplace: Risk Management, Compliance and RegTech?

The combination of AI, tech and data has created a new regime for risk management – new components, new approaches, new mindsets, new legislation, new oversight groups, new everything. So how ready are you for what is fast becoming a very different and new normal? Could we be on the cusp of the RegTech era?

In this session Evan Wong and Paul Wenck, Co-founders of Checkbox, a multi award winning platform that focusses on transforming regulations into software that automates decisions making, generates documents and automates workflow, will discuss, through real life case studies, how this dynamic and still emerging regime, is impacting different industries and where it is likely to move in the near future.

2.30pm-2.45pm: Afternoon Break

2.45pm-4.15pm: Concurrent Sessions

Creating Your Own Legal R and D Department/Incubator/Accelerator for Continuous Improvement – Fact, Fiction of Fantasy?

Should law firms have an R & D department? How should in-house counsel tap into corporate R & D initiatives? What do legal incubators and accelerators do? And how is all of this connected to AI, legal tech and legal innovation? If you have been asking yourself any one or more of these questions, then this is a session for you. In this session we will explain what all of these terms mean, provide examples and practical case studies of how different initiatives have been incorporated into law firm/legal department DNA, and how it has changed cultures from “improvement under sufferance” to “continuous improvement for life!”

Facilitator: Terri Mottershead

Panellists:

- Denise Doyle, Legal Enablement Lead, Telstra
- Michelle Grossmann, Head of Innovation & Transformation, Lander & Rogers Lawyers | iHub
- Caryn Sandler, Partner & Chief Knowledge and Innovation Officer, Gilbert + Tobin
- Rajesh Sreenivasan, Partner and Head Technology, Media & Telecommunications, Rajan & Tann Singapore LLP

Blockchain Update – A year in review!

It was so popular last year we are bringing this session back but also, a whole lot has happened in between! So one year later, are there case studies we can point to that help us better understand how blockchain is impacting legal practice? Is there legislation we should know about? Are some practice areas more impacted than others? What lies in the near future and a little further along? And how “far” is “further along?” In this session we will discuss the changing face of blockchain locally and internationally and how that is likely to impact what you do today.

Facilitator: Michael Bacina, Partner, Piper Alderman

Panellists:

- Tobias Crush, Co-Founder, Willbits
- Ed Macgregor, Manager, Technology & Innovation – Deals, Tax, Legal, KPMG Australia
- Steve Vallas, Founder, Blockchain APAC
- Bonnie Yiu, Co-founder, Consulere.io

4.15pm-5.15pm

Closing Plenary

Implementing and Embedding a Culture of Change and Agility – Making “new” work in a “traditional” world

If AI and legal tech are innovation enablers and innovation is not invention, is the opportunity for change in how we structure, manage, work in and work for clients in legal practice also our greatest challenge?
Can lawyers change? Can law firms be agile workplaces? Can we really turn around a ship sailing smoothly and comfortably for hundreds of years? And, even if we could, should we? Do we need a start-up mentality in law firms? Do clients even want it? What do we do with the people who find it “all too hard?” In this session, Warrick McLean will facilitate a lively closing plenary that will draw on the experience of the panellists to identify and candidly canvas the risks inherent in change, the role of mindset, culture and resilience and whether or not there is a future for legal practice in the emerging, new legal marketplace.

Facilitator: Warrick McLean, Chief Executive Officer, Coleman Greig Lawyers

Panellists:

- Genevieve Collins, Chief Executive Partner, Lander & Rogers
- Mitzi Gilligan, Founder and Principal, Hive Legal
- Marcus McCarthy, Principal, Nexus Law Group
- Mick Sheehy, Partner, New Law, PWC
